E MAKING AN IMPACT

Taraji P. Hensen

Actress and entrepreneur Taraji P. Hensen is working to improve mental health in Black communities. In 2018, she started a nonprofit named after her father, the Boris Lawrence Henson Foundation (named after her father), to erase the stigma around it. But when the pandemic took hold, Henson and her team quickly pivoted from raising awareness about mental healthcare to actually facilitating it: The foundation offered to cover the cost of up to five therapy sessions for applicants in need.

Joseph Gordon-Levitt

Levitt is best known for collaborations on film and TV—but with production schedules halted, he’s been spending even more time with the company he founded in 2010, HitRecord, which has seen a surge of interest. HitRecord began as a production company, but it has evolved into a platform that enables people to launch and join artistic projects.

E TESTING THE STATUS QUO

Julia Cheek

In 2015, Julia Cheek launched Everlywell to disrupt the “not particularly sexy” industry of lab testing. She knew that the system was broken, and she started partnering with independent labs around the country to provide access to a menu of at-home hormone, vitamin, and STI tests at transparent prices. Soon after, Everlywell’s Austin-based team began working with the FDA to get a home COVID-19 test authorized.

E DISRUPTORS OF DISRUPTION

Katherine Allen and Atreya Misra

When COVID-19 hit, co-founders Katherine Allen and Atreya Misra worried their company Flo Recruit was done for — and then realized they faced a massive opportunity. “This has forced people to become comfortable with remote interviewing,” says Allen. “We want to be the leader that provides a virtual solution before they even know what that’s supposed to look like.” With its new virtual products, Flo Recruit is now on track to triple last year’s revenue.

Be a Part of the Suspenseful Show with One Critical Minute to Make It

Entrepreneur Elevator Pitch gives real entrepreneurs the opportunity to pitch their businesses to investors. The catch? They have one minute to do it—the length of their actual elevator ride up to the boardroom to meet their potential funders.

A screen inside the elevator counts down: 59, 58, 57... as the entrepreneur makes her pitch and the elevator begins the trip to the top floor. If the pitch is accepted, the elevator doors open and our entrepreneur reaches the boardroom with the investors waiting to ask questions.

If the pitch fails to get investors’ attention, they hear a voice in the elevator that says, “Good try... Going down!”

E VISIONARY FOR A SUSTAINABLE CLEAN

Sarah Paiji Yoo

Imagine a nontoxic tablet that's like Alka-Seltzer meets Lysol. Plop it into a reusable container filled with water and voilà: eco-friendly household cleaning products. Paiji Yoo and her cofounder, John Mascari, did their own R&D, pinging 100 chemists on LinkedIn before launching Blueland with a suite of cleaners and hand soap in 2019. As for getting customers to make the switch? That's where they got a break: In March, when the cleaning aisles in grocery stores went empty, Blueland saw a 300 percent surge in demand, and now it's doing several million dollars in revenue a month.

Sterling K. Brown

This Is Us star Sterling K. Brown is part of a show that celebrates different life experiences and includes diverse perspectives through its creative decisions. Now he's working to ensure there's more diversity behind the camera, too. Last year, Brown launched his own production company, Indian Meadows Productions. He wants it to stand as a counternarrative to the urban ghettos Hollywood so often uses as shorthand for Black life in America.

E DOING BUSINESS WITH A TWIST

Jake Bullock and Luke Anderson

Despite the foray into the cannabis space by mammoth beverage companies, the current leader of the pack is a small California start-up called Cann, which offers “social tonics” with flavors such as grapefruit rosemary and lemon lavender. To date, the company has sold more than two million cans. Founded by former investment bankers Jake Bullock and Luke Anderson, Cann positions itself as a healthy alternative to alcohol that gives a similar social buzz minus the hangover and the calories.

Green Entrepreneur is focused on the entrepreneurship, business, technology, and lifestyle of the burgeoning cannabis industry.

Connect with cannabis thought leaders, innovators and consumers through engaging experiences across multiple platforms.

SPOT HERO

E WORKING SMART

Mark Lawrence

Mark Lawrence co-founded SpotHero in Chicago, and investors told him he needed to expand across America fast. He wanted to take a different approach...even though he wasn't entirely sure it was the right one. He decided to beat his competitors by growing slower than they did, learned to operate at scale and proved himself right. Today the company operates in 300 cities and expects to hit a billion dollars in total parking sales in 2021.
